THE ROUND
Partly topped in glass, the sculptural, gold leaf-finished base of Worlds Away side table is clearly the star of this playful piece. Although the designer had more scientific intention, we can't help but think back to a classic childhood game: jacks. $1,500, Solo Design, 503 31st Newport Beach, worlds-away.com

SET FOR LIFE
Part of Lalique's art deco-inspired furniture and accessory collection, Lalique Maison, and designed by Lady Tina Green and Pietro Mingarelli, the Masque de Femme backgammon set features a croc exterior, embossed leather board, and game pieces inset with finely detailed crystal carvings. $13,000, Lalique, 238 N. Rodeo Drive, Beverly Hills, lalique.com

FIT FOR A KING
The sculptural, grand Baroque form of Autoban's King floor lamp mimics the chess piece for which it's named. Available in an array of high-gloss colors, along with oiled black walnut, white oak or European ash, choosing a style may be a tough move. $2,285, Twentieth, 8057 Beverly Blvd., L.A., twentieth.net

NET WORTH
After seeing a photo of monks playing pingpong on a concrete table, designer James de Wulf was inspired to create his own version. At regulation-height 30 inches, the refined-industrial table also serves as a spot for post-game dining, indoors or out. $9,320, James de Wulf, 3307 Exposition Blvd., L.A., jamesdewulf.com

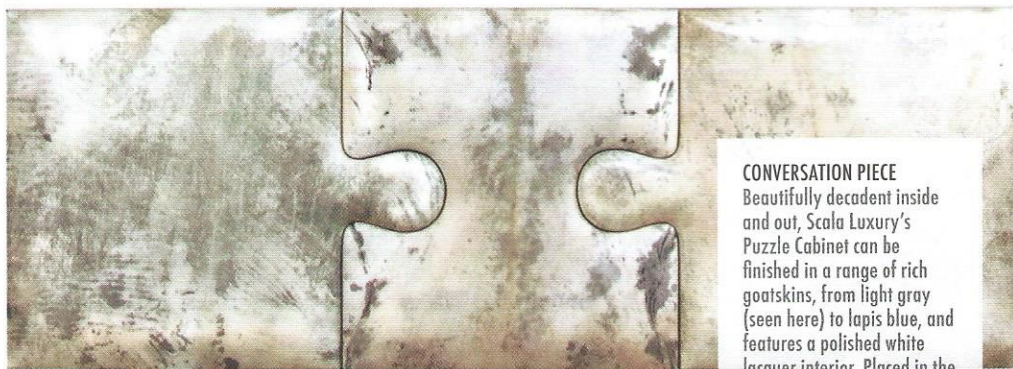

BOLD MOVE
At once a stunning artwork and classic childhood pastime: Kelly Wearstler's decadent tic-tac-toe set. The combed bronze-finished board and rose quartz and pyrite game pieces are gorgeous enough to become a permanent coffee table fixture. $3,295, Kelly Wearstler, 8440 Melrose Ave., L.A., kellywearstler.com

A PLAY ON GAMES

By Laura Eckstein

Made to bring out the kid in all of us, these elegantly designed pieces add a dash of whimsy to any room of the house.

CONVERSATION PIECE
Beautifully decadent inside and out, Scala Luxury's Puzzle Cabinet can be finished in a range of rich goatskins, from light gray (seen here) to lapis blue, and features a polished white lacquer interior. Placed in the foyer or the living room, this unique console will make a statement while fitting right
